CAPTAIN FREDERIC P. SCHOONMAKER, COMMANDING COMPANY C, SIXTEENTH INFANTRY.

COMPANY C. SIXTEENTH INFANTRY, BRADFORD, PA.

With Governor Tener and the members of the State Armory Board as special guests of honor, the new armory of Company C, Sixteenth Infantry, at Bradford, was dedicated with special exercises on November 26. Bradford made the most of a great day, and thousands of visitors were delighted with the splendor of the preparations.

Governor Tener and his party, upon their arrival, were escorted by a delegation of military officials and distinguished citizens to the Hotel Holly. Later, the Governor and other honored guests went to the armory, and participated in a public reception. In the receiving line were: Governor John K. Tener, General Thomas J. Stewart, Adjutant General; Samuel Todd, Executive Comptroller; General C. B. Dougherty, Commanding Division N. G. P.; General William G. Price, Jr., commanding First Brigade, N. G. P.; General Albert J. Logan, commanding Second Brigade, N. G. P.; General Willis J. Hulings, Colonel Benjamin W. Demming, Secretary State Armory Board; Colonel George C. Rickards, Oil City; Major R. B. Gamble, Meadville; Major C. D. Wilcox, Corry; Major C. B. Smathers, Grove City; Major E. Lowrey Humes, Captain C. F. Clyde, Meadville; Lieutenant H. K. Gibson, Greenville; Lieutenant F. L. Ruffing, Grove City; Lieutenant Valentine Murray, Lieutenant Harry Miller, Meadville; Captain McGregor, Lieutenant Sirrine, Oil City; Captain T. L. Kane, Lieutenant Cupp, Lieutenant Nelson, Kane; Captain O'Connor, Lieutenant Wilson, Lieutenant Buscha, Franklin; Lieutenant Phelps, Lieutenant Mizener, Lieutenant Hill, Erie; Captain Long, Lieutenant Signor, Lieutenant Park, Ridgway; Lieutenant Tribble, Lieutenant Munson, Warren; Captain Walter, Lieutenant McNutt, Lieutenant Geiger, Kittanning; Captain Burtins, Lieutenant Collins, Lieutenant Hoyt, Butler; Captain Kennedy, Lieutenant Hamilton, Lieutenant McCoy, Grove City; Lieutenant Keating, Corry; Captain F. P. Schoonmaker, Bradford.

The reception was followed by a grand march, led by the Governor and Mrs. A. D. Burns, under the direction of Captain L. H. Simons.

The formal exercises were then held. On behalf of the Tuna Manufacturing Company, the builders of the new citadel, W. H. Dennis presented the keys to A. P. Mount, of Corry, the supervising architect, in the following well-chosen words:

"Mr. Architect: Early in this year the Tuna Manufacturing Company, whom I am present to represent, contracted with the State Armory Board of Pennsylvania for the erection and completion of a building in this city to be known as the armory, according to plans and specifications made for some by Messrs. A. P. Mount & Son, of Corry, Pa., and under their direction and supervision, the work to be done and materials furnished to be to their satisfaction and to the satisfaction of the State Armory Board.

"Being resident citizens, our company naturally felt pleased that the work had been placed in our hands, and we have endeavored to the best of our ability to carry out in detail the work as you designed it. We trust it is to your satisfaction and also that of the Armory Board.

"We appreciate the courteous treatment given our company by our employers and their superintendent, the architect, and I now have the pleasure of turning over to you the keys to the completed building, the future home of Company C, the crack company of the Sixteenth Regiment."

Mr. Mount, who is one of the leaders in his profession, then presented the keys to Governor Tener, and said:

"Governor Tener. Your Excellency: "It is very gratifying to me to be able to say that the contractors have done their work well; that this armory has been finished according to plans and specifications. I now formlaly present you with the keys."

The Governor replied in his usual happy manner, and then handing the keys to Adjutant General Stewart, bade him present them to Captain Schoonmaker. Both General Stewart and Captain Schoonmaker made impressive remarks. The formal ceremonies concluded with a vocal selection, entitled "Pennsylvania," rendered by George P. Lull.

The dedication was followed by a military reception and ball, which was a notable event in the history of Bradford. The splendid new drill floor was covered for hours with beautiful women, handsomely gowned for the occasion, and the sturdy men of northern Pennsylvania. The hall was elaborately decorated, while every detail was given the greatest attention. Refreshments were served in the dining room under the direction of Captain and Commissary W. C. Hogan.

Prior to the evening exercises, a luncheon was given at the Hotel Holly during the afternoon. Asher R. Johnson was the toastmaster, and the speakers included Governor Tener, Hon. W. W. Brown, General Albert J. Logan, commanding the Second Brigade, N. G. P.; Hon. R. P. Hapgood, General C. B. Dougherty, commanding Division, N. G. P.; General William G. The city of Bradford is undoubtedly well deserving of the new armory for her military company. Bradford has long been famous for her ardent patriotism, and her sons have contributed their blood on scores of battlefields on behalf of the nation. Company C has for years been regarded as one of the very best units of the National Guard, and the many admirers of the company, throughout the State, are rejoicing that the long desired new quarters have at last been occupied.

Bradford loyalty was in large measure responsible for the acquisition of the handsome new armory. The site for the building was contributed in its entirety by patriotic citizens of the sturdy community, who purchased the ground and gave clear title to the State of Pennsylvania. This effort was but typical of the spirit which sways Bradford, and makes the city one of the most progressive in the Union. Bradford is a hustling community, and its citizens are wide-awake and all work together to push their city ahead. Bradford industries are famous throughout the country, and while it is a third-class city to-day, it is but a matter of time before it will take its place as one of the chief centres of the State.

The Bradford company is one of the very best in the National Guard. For years it has been famous for its records in rifle practice, and quite a number of the members have served upon the State teams. The company has a high standard of efficiency, a proud history to cherish, and is in every sense a credit to its home town and likewise to the State.

The new armory is a fine substantial building, equipped with many modern improvements. It is in many respects a small fortress and was designed by the well-known firm of architects, A. P. Mount & Son, of Corry, Pa. The Tuna Manufacturing Company, of Bradford, one of the leading concerns of the State, was the builder.

"A GROUP OF THE FINEST."

It was largely through the efforts of Lieutenant Colonel A. D. Burns, of the Sixteenth Infantry, and Captain Frederic P. Schoonmaker, of Company C, assisted by the corps of public spirited citizens of Bradford that the armory was secured. The improved quarters had been under discussion for many years, but under the guidance of these men the movement finally met with success.

The Bradford company has long been prominent in the service. During the Spanish-American War, the company, which had volunteered into the United States Army, participated in the Porto Rican campaign, and rendered brilliant service at the Battle of Coamo. The company also responded to the tours of the duty in connection with the several industrial disturbances in the State.

When called upon to serve the country, in 1898, Company C, the pride of the town, received a great send-off upon its departure from Bradford on the morning of April 27. The men had been impatiently waiting for some time for the orders to proceed to war, and these had finally reached Captain A. D. Burns on the day previous. Members of the company reported at the armory on the night of April 26, and spent hours in preparing for their departure. As the company marched to the railway station in the morning, they were tendered a triumph. All Bradford turned out to honor its militia, and the company was accompanied on its march with a substantial escort. In the line of parade were a platoon of police, the Bradford Fire Police, Post No. 141, G. A. R., with its drum corps; Union Veteran Legion, Jamieson's Band and ex-members of Company C.

Prior to their departure, every man was presented with a pretty ribbon ornament favor by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. As a token of esteem, Captain Burns was given a fine pearl-handled Smith & Wesson revolver by the members of the Bradford Fire Police Brigade.

The company went from Bradford to Oil City, where it joined other companies of the Sixteenth Regiment, and proceeded with them to Pittsburgh, and from there to Mt. Gretna.

Leonard, Jr., Clarence A. Larson, Charles W. Laney, Guy H. Locke, Charles F. Malzen, Kenneth K. McClure, George B. McNally, John F. McLaughlin, Peter C. McManus, William Meyer, John Meyer, Alfred G. Mason, William C. Miller, Byron Nelson, William C. Neil, Lewis Newell, Fred H. Oatman, Arthur B. Ogden, Alfred C. Purple, William T. Piper, Edgar L. Rhone, John M. Reardon, James C. Reardon, Friend C. Randall, Harry B. Rowell, Frederick Ray, Reinhold N. Sandberg, William E. Scott, William A. Snyder, Robert J. St. Helen, Paul B. Selden, David E. Stewart, Frank M. Staigers, John Smith, Frank J. Taylor, Howard O. Whitling, Charles M. Ward, William Winegar, George Whitlock; musicians, Rudolph C. Sasse, Sanford H. Thorne; clerk, Oscar J. Peart; regimental wagonmaster, George L. Fennerty; artificer, William J. Dunne; wagoner, Frank J. Waever.

Of those leaving for the war several were destined to give their lives for their country. Sergeant Edward S. Bailey died at Coamo, Porto Rico, on October 2, 1898, and was buried on the battlefield. Harry M. Bodine died at Ponce, Porto Ricoo, on September 13, 1898, and was buried there. Ervin M. Kerns died at Coamo, Porto Rico, on August 31, 1898, and was buried on the battlefield. Charles M. Ward died and was buried at sea on August 17, 1898.

The company reached Mt. Gretna during a snow storm, which turned into rain, about 8.30 o'clock on the morning of April 28. After standing in the cold for a long time, the company finally found quarters in a pavilion where the officers slept that evening on the floor. This was but a temporary condition, however, as the tents were occupied shortly afterwards.

On May 3, the Sixteenth Regiment, commanded by Colonel W. J. Hulings, formally entered the U. S. service. Company C, being on the right of the line, Captain Burns was the first to volunteer. The regiment volunteered to a man, and after enduring inclement weather and other hardships at Mt. Gretna, finally left for Chickamauga, on May 15.

In less than a week after their arrival at Camp Thomas, Chickamauga, the Sixteenth Regiment participated in a review of the First Division of the First Army Corps, United States Volunteers, before its commander, Major General James H. Wilson, and made an excellent appearance. "You have a splendid regiment there and one to be proud of," declared Brigadier General Joseph C. Breckenridge, Inspector of the United States Army, to Colonel Hulings. The regiment remained at Camp Thomas for several weeks, during which it underwent many drills and the hardships of camp routine.

On July 5, the regiment was ordered to Charlestown, S. C., where it arrived two days later. There several weeks were spent in drills and rifle practice until the transports were taken for Porto Rico, twelve hundred miles away. The sojourn at Charlestown provided many hardships for the men, the rations in particular, being unusually poor. The heat, too, was unusually severe, the thermometer frequently reaching 115 degrees. The transport ship was finally boarded on July 21.

Travel on the transport ship, which was sailing under sealed orders, was rough, though Company C had fair quarters. The ship carried in all 1204 soldiers, a ship crew of a hundred men and 800 mules and horses. Ponce, Porto Rico, was reached on July 28 and Company C was placed on a lighter and towed ashore by a naphtha launch.

The company was in Porto Rico but a comparatively short time before the regiment was called upon to go under fire at the famous Battle of Coamo. As is well known, the Sixteenth displayed remarkable courage on that field, and completely routed the Spaniards. Company C took a prominent part in the engagement, and Privates George Whitlock and Clyde C. Frank were shot in the thigh. The Spanish had 11 killed and 71 wounded besides 161 captured. After the battle, General Wilson congratulated Colonel Hulings upon the splendid showing of his men.

Frank and Whitlock, the two wounded men, were taken to Ponce and treated at the hospital in the town and later brought to the United States. Frank had joined the company at Chickamauga. Whitlock had left Bradford with the other men.

CAPTAIN AND INSPECTOR SMALL ARMS PRACTICE COURTNEY E. HAZLETON,
Sixteenth Infantry.

Within the next three days after the battle all hostilities between Spain and the United States were officially declared off, and the company then began camp duty, which, with nothing to do except the killing of time, soon proved monotonous. The rainy season soon afterwards began and this only made conditions even more disagreeable. Captain Burns and a considerable number of the men were soon on the sick list, and the troubles of the company were further increased by the rations supplied by the government. The company, however, continued in Porto Rico for some time, but eventually returned to their home city during the fall. They were given a great reception by the citizens of Bradford upon their arrival.

Colonel Andrew Dee Burns is one of the best known, most efficient and popular officers of the Pennsylvania State Guard. Colonel Burns has given the greater portion of his life to the work of developing the Guard, and through his personal efforts has contributed in no small measure towards the advancement of the militia to its present high standing. Colonel Burns is a native of Ontario, Wayne county, New York, where he was born on his father's farm, on August 20, 1850. He came to Bradford in 1878, and worked on an oil lease until 1887, when he started in the plumbing business in a small way, with C. M. Carr. Two years later he purchased the interest of his partner, and since then he has seen this business develop to one of the great establishments of the State. Colonel Burns is to-day in a large number of other business enterprises, and is regarded as one of the leading men of affairs in northern Pennsylvania.

Major Burns entered the services of the State of Pennsylvania as a private in Company C, Sixteenth Regiment Infantry, on September 4, 1880. He was promoted to Corporal, March 17, 1881; to Sergeant, May 1, 1884; to Second Lieutenant, October 26, 1885, and to First Lieutenant, October 22, 1890. He was chosen Captain of the company on October 13, 1893, and re-elected June 6, 1899. He was elected Major of the Sixteenth Regiment Infantry on January 25, 1902, and was re-elected in 1907. He served as Lieutenant of Company C, Sixteenth Regiment, in the Homestead riots in 1892, and also took part at the Jefferson county riots of 1893; and the anthracite riots of 1902.

On May 10, 1898, was mustered into the service of the United States, as Captain of Volunteers, and participated in Porto Rico from July 28, to October 19, 1898. On January 2nd, 1912, he was elected Lieutenant Colonel.

The Captains of Company C have served as follows: J. C. Fox, F. E. Bradley, A. D. Burns, George O. Sloane, James F. Robinson, James Crawford, Jr., John V. McAlpin, R. H. Slone, F. P. Schoonmaker. All were excellent soldiers and rendered splendid service. Captain Fox was a sterling veteran of the Civil War, and as "the father" of the company established the high standard of efficiency for the organization. Captain Bradley proved a worthy successor. Captain Slone also did good work for the company. Captain Robinson was a commander of unusual ability, and is to-day Captain of Troop D, of the State Police. Captain Crawford was one of the most popular of the captains, and his retirement, due to his removal to Erie, occasioned deep regret among his men. Captain McAlpin was Captain for almost a year and was succeeded by Captain R. H. Slone, who was likewise succeeded by the present Captain, Frederic P. Schoonmaker.

Captain Schoonmaker is an officer of unusual ability, and under his administration the company has made wonderful progress. Captain Schoonmaker is a deep student of military conditions and it is expected that a brilliant future awaits him. He is an attorney of prominence, a member of the firm of Brown & Schoonmaker, and is the City Solicitor of Bradford. He is also connected with a number of financial and industrial enterprises. He has the confidence of his men and in many respects is an ideal commander.

First Lieutenant James B. Wheeler and Second Lieutenant Philip L. Webster are both officers of experience and are devoted to the interests of the company. Both are prominent business men.

This illustration shows Colonel George C. Rickards mounted on a Kentucky thoroughbred presented to him by the officers of the Sixteenth Infantry on the occasion of the dedication of the State Armory. The officials in the first row facing Colonel Rickards are Governor and Commander-in-Chief John K. Tener, Major General C. Bow Dougherty, Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, General Willis J. Hulings, recently elected to United States Congress, General William G. Price, Jr., and General Albert J. Logan.

Much of the success of the company is due to the influence of the Bradford Gun Club, which has always taken a deep interest in Company C. The club house of this organization is one of the show spots of the city.

The building is one of the most substantial and handsome club houses in the country. In fact there are few houses owned by gun clubs in the East that excel it in architectural beauty. The club house is built in colonial style, with the addition of a tower. It is a two-story structure, 28x36 feet and has a veranda that is nine feet wide and extends the entire length of the building. The veranda at the first floor has a concrete bottom and on the second floor has been arranged so that it may be used for lounging or for a vantage spot from which to watch the shooting.

The first story of the building is built entirely of native red sandstone—a rock that is now extremely scarce in this locality. In building the first story, great care was taken to give the stone work a uniform but massive appearance. It is set in brown mortar, which brings out strongly the joints between the stones. The effect sought and in a majority of cases accomplished by the stone masons, gives the work the appearance of numerous diamonds in a brown setting. In addition to the first story walls, the porch pillars and the building's foundation, a huge fireplace has been built of stone in the gun room. Wheatley Saience tile in front of the fireplace adds much to its rugged beauty.

The gun room, which is the principal room of the ground floor, is 15 by 34 feet and will be furnished in the most approved style. Directly at the rear of this room is an office where ammunition is stored and where the score keepers will remain while tournaments are in progress. The office and gun room is supplied with steel lockers for the accommodation of shooters. Under the stairway and close to the ooffice is a toilet room and nearby is a deep well from which pure water is pumped.

A wide stairway leads to the second floor, where are located a kitchen, ladies' sitting room and a dining room. The furnishings of these rooms will be so arranged that space may be made for 40 or 50 diners. From the dining room a door opens to the big veranda, from which an unobstructed view of the three traps may be obtained.

CAPTAIN AND COMMISSARY WILLIAM G. HOGAN,
Sixteenth Infantry.

The interior of the building is finished in colonial style, with heavy beams crossing the ceiling. The finish is of oak with the exception of the doors, which are of heavy mahogany and walnut. The windows are so arranged that every part of the building is well lighted.

The officers of the Bradford Gun Club are: J. E. Mallory, President; C. D. Henline, Vice-President; A. W. Vernon, Secretary and Treasurer; R. S. Pringle, P. A. Bodine.

The club grounds includes 17 acres of land, which with the present improvements, is valued at $8,000.

AN "EMPLOYER'S REVIEW."

Lieut., (Jr. G.) Louis E. Fagan, N. F. P.

When Commander Kingsley L. Martin, Second Battalion, N. M. N. Y., decided to parade his command in what he termed an "employer's Review," he set about the execution of one of the most interesting and novel exhibitions that has ever been given in years. To say that it served its purpose is not all. It was a very remarkable success as a review from a military standpoint. The employers of the members of the battalion, who were the guests of the evening, left the armory with a thorough realization that the Naval Militia produces punctuality, loyalty to superiors, promptness in executing orders, self-denial to the success of the organization, and a multitude of other traits that must be developed and practiced by employees of all successful business concerns. Those who had entertained the idea that the average State military organization is a farce and a useless waste of the public funds went home with a very different idea than that all it consisted of was strutting about in uniforms. It was a revelation to many, no doubt, that the serious work which is done in the Naval Militia and the National Guard to-day acts as a stimulus in producing and developing the very best qualities in a young man.

I personally witnessed this review and consider it of such value as a means of interesting and instructing the employer in the work of the Guard, that I should most earnestly advocate that a similar review be given by each command throughout the State of Pennsylvania. Too many employers discourage enlistment in the Guard because they have a firm conviction that it is a waste of time and a financial drain and produces no good results. Many an employer recalls the old days when he perhaps belonged to some elaborately-named militia organization which was established primarily for social purposes, with once in a while a magnificent ceremony or a parade. The gorgeous uniforms were a heavy financial burden to the employer, then a young man of modest means, and the good times were none too beneficial to his fitness for business the next day. Conditions have, of course, changed, as we of the Guard know, but many an employer is not thoroughly aware of this, and either he or his foreman makes it very hard for those under him who may be enlisted. It is not well known, except within the inner circle, that the State and Federal Governments spend millions of dollars annually in maintaining the Guard, and that it is now a well organized, businesslike concern in which good character, patriotism and valor are the keynotes. Would an employer like to feel that, outside of business hours, his men were developing themselves physically, mentally and morally? Do not many large corporations spend thousands of dollars for reading rooms, athletic grounds, club houses and social organizations that they know will make their employees better citizens and better workers? The National Guard and the Naval Militia will do all this and more; it will protect the nation, among other things. But we must make Mr. Employer see this; must bear in mind the old saying, "seeing's believing." We can do this by doing what the Naval Militia in Brooklyn did on December 10, 1912.

First of all, the members of the battalion appeared en masse, and the review commenced at the scheduled time. Each guest was supplied with a programme that explained all the events in a clear, concise manner, and he was also given an especially prepared booklet, admirably prepared by Adjutant General William Verbeck, New York, entitled "Duty of an Employer to the Militia." A concert by the Battalion Band was followed by a short, snappy setting-up drill with and without arms, performed in time to music. Then followed a series of very amusing forecastle sports—a demonstration by the Bugle and Drum Corps of routine calls, both beaten and blown—and an exhibition of boat drill and signalling by flag hoist, semaphore (both hand and mechanical) wig-wag, and colored lights. A battalion parade concluded the review, and a reception and dance followed, during which the employers were escorted about the armory, and had many points of interest explained to them.

The evidences of faithful work, well done by officers and men, were manifest throughout the entire performance. Commander Martin is fortunate in having officers under him who are efficient and real workers in every sense of the word. The armory, one of the finest and best equipped in the United States, is the result of the efforts of Commodore R. P. Forshew, commanding N. M. N. Y., who was formerly in command of the Brooklyn Battalion—a graduate of Annapolis and a veteran of the Spanish-American War. It took ten years' waiting and persistence for him to get the armory, but it eventually became a reality, and all as a result of his untiring efforts. The New York Naval Militia is indeed a credit to the service.

The latest bulletin issued by the Division of Militia Affairs, War Department, contains the following items of interest to the National Guard:

Whistles are now available for issue to the Organized Militia and may be obtained from the Quartermaster's Department upon requisition in the usual way.

The supply of Manuals for Courts Martial is now exhausted and it is not known when an additional supply will be obtained for issue.

The Ordnance Department will supply napthalene to cavalry, field artillery, and signal corps organizations of the Organized Militia, to protect the sheepskin lining of saddles, etc., from moths, upon requisition in the usual way. One hundred pounds of napthalene should be sufficient for a battery of field artillery for six months.

The Chief of the Quartermaster Corps has reported that the appropriation for the fisfical year 1913, for the procurement of field desks, has been reduced to such an extent that no purchases thereof can be made at present.

Perforated sheets for carbon copies of indorsements and letters in connection with the new system of correspondence, as outlined in General Orders, No. 23, War Department, 1912, will be supplied in any quantity by the Quartermaster Corps upon receipt of requisition therefor. This stationery can be furnished either as a charge against the allotment of a State under Section 1661, Revised Statutes, or as a purchase for cash from State funds, under Section 17 of the Militia Law.

In connection with the installation of dummy armament in the armories of the Coast Artillery Reserves, the Chief of Ordnance reports that the new type of target for all mortar plotting boards is now under manufacture and will be ready for issue to the Organized Militia in about one month.

No further issues of khaki clothing will be made to the Organized Militia. Hereafter only olive drab cotton clothing will be supplied on all orders, whether calling for khaki or olive drab cotton.

The number of inquiries received at this office leads to the conclusion that there exists a misapprehension as to the blank forms which the recruiting officers for war of the various organizations in the several States and Territories are required to keep on hand, and by whom these forms will be furnished. A letter to the Governor of each State and Territory from the Acting Secretary of War, dated September 11, 1911, stated that:

> An officer of each local organization will be designated as recruiting officer for war. He will keep himself informed of all the requirements of his office and he will, by application to the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or District, secure the necessary blank forms.

This contemplates that recruiting officers will have in their possession sufficient enlistment blanks to recruit their organizations to war strength. These blanks should be those ordinarily used by the State for enlistment purposes. In addition to the foregoing, they should have the blanks required by the State authorities to enable them to account for the expenditures for subsistence of the recruit detachments, and a sufficient number of blank transportation requests used by the State to forward recruits, when enlisted, to the State mobilization camps. Should it not be deemed advisable that the transportation requests be furnished recruiting officers until needed, arrangements should be made to promptly supply them with these, so that, should the necessity for their use arise, they will be able to forward recruits without delay.

The foregoing will indicate the forms which it is believed each recruiting officer for war should have in his possession. The character of the form is for the State to decide, but for the sake of uniformity that used by the United States Army should be followed, in so far as is practicable.

All future quarterly reports of Sergeant-Instructors on duty with the Organized Militia, instead of being forwarded directly to the Chief, Division of Militia Affairs, will be forwarded through the Senior Inspector-Instructor on duty with the State, and of the same arm or corps with which the Sergeant-Instructor is detailed. Where there is no Inspector-Instructor of the arm or corps, the report will be forwarded direct. Paragraph No. 105, Army Regulations, 1910, will be amended accordingly.

In view of the wonderful results obtained from the administration of the anti-typhoid vaccination in the army, it is believed the time has come for its recognition and general use in the Organized

Militia as a prophylactic against typhoid fever. Already many organizations in the militia have taken the anti-typhoid vaccination and others have made inquiries concerning it. Attention is invited to the following from the last report of the Surgeon General of the Army:

Among the 57,000 troops in the United States, there have been during the past ten months but twelve cases of typhoid fever and only two deaths. Most of the cases were among recruits who had not received the treatment, and of the deaths, one was an officer and the other a recruit, neither of whom had been vaccinated against typhoid fever. Considering that some of the troops are in the field serving under conditions which would in previous years produce typhoid at the rate of 150 cases and fifteen deaths in a corresponding period, the army surgeons feel that the enforcement of the system, which has only been since September, 1911, leaves no room for any question of the wisdom of that proceeding. The rate of typhoid per 1,000, beginning with 1906, is as follows: 1906, 5.66; 1907, 3.55; 1908, 2.94; 1909, 3.03; 1910, 2.32; 1911, .80; 1912, .18. These statistics are impressive, and the remarkable reduction in typhoid is due entirely to the immunizing policy.

The anti-typhoid serum can be procured from the Medical Department, United States Army, at an approximate cost of 12½ cents for each complete inoculation of three doses, and may be obtained either as a charge against the allotment of the State under Section 1661, Revised Statutes, or as a purchase for cash from State funds, under the provisions of Section 17 of the Militia Law.

Q. What was the "Macedonian Phalanx?" What was the "Roman Legion?" Name an important battle in which they were opposed. State the result of this battle.

A. Macedonian Phalanx was a division of the Army of Macedonia. Roman Legion was the Roman army.

A. In the battle of Crecy these opposing forces met and the result was in favor of the Romans.

A. The Roman Legion was a hundred foot soldiers. A Macedonian Phalanx was when the soldiers stood on the other soldiers back forming a great high wall with their shields.

Q. What was the Mason and Dixon's Line? How and when was it established? Why?

A. Mason and Dixon's line was a line made across the country from east to west. It apparently divides the country.

A. The Mason and Dixon line is a line running between Maryland and Georgia. It took its name from the name of the surveyors. It was established in 1690 and because there was a continual quarrel between the boundaries of the two states.

Q. Who were the leaders and what were the results of the Battles of Trenton and Princeton? What was the special importance of these two battles?

A. MontCalm and Wolf, Gained a stronger holt on the equipment of the opposing forces.

A. General Jackson and General Lee.

Q. Give the details of the establishment of the Republic of Panama.

A. The Republic of Panama was established by the United States against the wishes of England in about 1897. We almost had trouble on account of our "Monroe Doctrine."

A. The Mexican Government was unbearable thereby causing the southern part to rebel and form a republic.

A. Panama was under the control of Venezuela. She was mistreated and misgoverned and asked foreign nations for recognition as independent. The U. S. sent fleets over to Venezuela and forced her to recognize Panama's independence.

A. Spain was not to hold power in Panama, neither was the U. S. to annex her as a state.

A. Panama was purchased from Columbia.

A. That U. S. was to have Isthmus-Panama to control herself.

A. Panama was owned by the Spanish Gov. and it desired to be independent and free from the Spanish bonds. It rebelled and was recognized by the U. S. and other countries and so was freed and became an independent Gov.

The above are a few extracts from many equally as bad submitted by candidates in the examination of July 5, 1911, and emphasize the unfitness of the persons submitting such papers even to be proposed as candidates for entrance to this academy. These examination papers seem to establish (a) that proper care is not exercised in the selection of candidates, and (b) that the methods of instruction now in vogue in our schools are not satisfactory.

Many of the young men whose answers are above quoted reported themselves as having attended high school and some as having attended colleges and universities.

WILLIAM H. DENNIS,
Treasurer and Manager, Tuna Mfg. Co.

The United States Military Academy is not a primary school. The courses of instruction given here presuppose a foundation in the rudimentary branches. Where such a foundation does not exist no encouragement should be given to try the examinations, for thereby (a) the time and work of the officers engaged in examining the candidates and their papers are utterly wasted, (b) other young men more fit to take the examination are given no opportunity, and (c) in the many cases where candidates insufficiently prepared do actually obtain entrance to the academy they become a serious drawback on the advance of the whole class toward more valuable work.

In respect of (b) it is incredible that if proper means are used to find suitable applicants, the honor of an appointment as candidate for entrance to the Military Academy should go begging. There are surely thousands of young men in this country well grounded in the essential branches required of candidates who would welcome the chance to enter the military service as a cadet.

In respect to (c) the academic departments, especially those dealing with the fourth class, find it necessary, in view of the many cadets admitted who ultimately show great deficiency in fundamental training, to spend in the aggregate a large number of hours in elementary drill. This is particularly the case in English composition, where satisfactory progress can only be made after a thorough preparation and careful drill in the fundamentals.

In history also, familiarity with general and United States history is needed in order to progress satisfactorily with the course as given in European history since 1500 and in the elements of political science with special reference to conditions in this country.

Under these circumstances it seems reasonable to urge that the fitness of the appointees be thoroughly tested before they are allowed to take the entrance examinations. By this means the proportion of candidates who pass would be at once greatly increased; and the ultimate benefit to the personnel of the officers of the Army would repay manyfold the trouble taken.

Proposals were opened June 15 for east academic building. Eleven proposals were received for this work. The proposal of James Stewart & Co., 30 Church Street, New York City, N. The War Department has authorized the award of contract in the amount of $373,300 to this firm at a total cost, including contractor's commission of 6¼ per cent. of $396,631.25, omitting chemical laboratory and the map room, substituting concrete piles for foundations of stone masonry extending to bedrock, and the omission of conduits and fittings above blackboards.

The iron gates and stone posts formerly in use at the south guard house have been reset at the southern line of the reservation upon the road and sidewalk leading to Highland Falls. The cannon now at sides of this road near the boundary line will soon be reset upon the line, and stone monuments set in concrete will also be provided at frequent intervals to mark the line of the reservation in this vicinity.

Major HENRY H. DOAN, Medical Corps

EDITORIAL.

At last an armory is regarded as assured to the auxiliary troops comprising Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, Troop A, Troop G, and Company B, Engineers. It is generally believed that the site will be along the upper Parkway, and that the construction of the armory will be so arranged that a field battery of artillery when organized can also be housed in the prospective fortress. It will virtually be the military citadel of Philadelphia, according to present plans, as it is also intended to have General William G. Price's headquarters for the First Brigade located in the structure.

For many years these splendid troops of cavalry have been buffeted around from pillar to post, but have made strong headway despite the discouraging quarters that each possessed. The officers from the United States Army who inspected these units each year expressed astonishment at the wonderful efficiency which they displayed under the circumstances. Credit is due to the gentlemen comprising the Armory Board for having decided to give these troops a permanent and proper military home.

The recent announcement by Governor-elect Sulzer, of New York, that his staff would be chosen entirely from those holding commission in the National Guard has been received with much favorable comment throughout the country. Undoubtedly there has been a tendency in some States to select staff officers for their social or political position rather than for their abilities. Conditions of this kind have never helped the militia, and in a way have hindered its development. Pennsylvania, however, has been singularly fortunate in this respect, for from its very infancy the staff has always contained officers thoroughly familiar with military affairs. The present staff, if anything, is about the most competent in the country and is composed of practical departmental officers who saw active service in the field during the sixties and the Spanish-American War. General Thomas J. Stewart, the Adjutant General, Chief of Staff, is so well known throughout the length and the breadth of the land that his military and executive abilities require no comment. His worthy record speaks for itself.

Colonel Frank K. Patterson, Inspector General of Small Arms Practice, is another sterling officer, who served when quite a boy during the Civil War, and has a distinguished career.

Colonel Horace L. Haldeman was a mere youth when he was appointed to the Commissary General's Department during Philadelphia's strife. Colonel Joseph K. Weaver, Surgeon General, was one of Pennsylvania's field medical officers, he having held a commission during the sixties.

Colonel Frank G. Sweeney, Inspector General, is well known as one of the expert inspectors of the organized militia of the United States, and we have the intrepid Quartermaster General, Colonel Harry C. Trexler, who is a veteran in departmental work, in addition to being a famous captain of industry.

Adjutant General Fred Taylor Pusey was Adjutant of the First Infantry for many years. Colonel Howard S. Williams, Chief of Ordnance, rose from the ranks to a Battery Commander, and so we could go on and name the soldierly qualifications and the practical military knowledge of such officers as Colonels James Elverson, Jr., Walter T. Bradley, John R. Wiggins, Oliver S. Hershman, James W. Fuller, Andrew Berger, Thomas Edward Murphy, Samuel D. Lit, William H. Kaul, Samuel D. Foster, Charles C. Pratt, and Frank Connell.

NOTES

Captain Edward R. Sherman, of Bradford, though always an active man of affairs, has also been deeply interested in the welfare of Company C, and has been zealous in his efforts for the advance of the militia, generally. Captain Sherman was a distinguished soldier of the Civil War, participating in many famous engagements, and was wounded at the second Battle of Bull Run. He is a Past Commander of Grand Army Post No. 141, of Bradford. Captain Sherman has long been identified with the oil industry, and has likewise been an active leader of the Republican forces in McKean county, and served with distinction as Coroner of the county. He was likewise prominently identified with the Kendall Methdoist Episcopal Church for years.

One of the well known business men in McKean county is Sergeant John F. Leonard, Jr., who was mustered into the United States service with Company C, Sixteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and had charge of the First Brigade Pharmaceutical Dispensary at Puerto Rico during the Spanish-American War. The service that Sergeant Leonard rendered at this time was invaluable, and he was highly complimented by his superior officers for the excellent system that he inaugurated in this field dispensary.

PEARL CLAY PRODUCTS COMPANY.

The brick used in the new State Armory at Bradford, Pa., is a splendid specimen of the celebrated craftsman brick manufactured by the Pearl Clay Products Company of Bradford, Pa., of which Mr. W. M. Hodges is Secretary and General Manager. This brick is so well known and is giving such great satisfaction that the leading architects in the United States are constantly specifying its use.

Among the more prominent of the list jobs on which Pearl Clay Products Company's brick have been used is the new Army and Navy Building at Washington, D. C. (an illustration of this magnificent building will follow in one of our later issues), the State Power House, Fire Department and Kantrowitz Theatre at Albany. The handsome M. E. edifice at New Brighton, the Ithaca Theatre, the McKinley School, at Syracuse, N. Y., the immense Woolworth Building at Troy, the City Hall at Owego, the Bank and Post Office at Floral Park, L. I., the handsome Post Office Building at Carlisle, Pa., the Nurses' Home, State Hospital, Providence, R. I., the United States Government Hospitals at Chelsea, Massachusetts, Newport, R. I., and Portsmouth, N. H., the recently constructed Naval Hospital, Annapolis, Md., St. Peter's and St. Paul's School at Rochester, N. Y., and many other buildings. Correspondence solicited and catalogues will be cheerfully sent upon application.

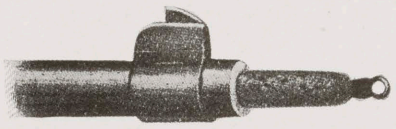
Your Rifles Kept Perfectly Clean from One Encampment to Another.



The Ideal Anti-Rust Rope

Has solved the problem, of keeping the rifles in perfect condition at all times. They are saturated with a rust preventive and when placed in the rifle they exclude all air and moisture. Being larger than the bore the oil is pressed against the entire inside of the barrel. You have undoubtedly had the experience of taking a rifle from the arm rack and finding rust spots in the barrel. Although the rifle had been well cleaned and oiled when put away. The trouble comes from this fact. Oil will very often, on smooth and highly polished metal, slide off, on small patches of the metal, in little globules, leaving the metal perfectly bare on these patches. Then moisture gets in its work and sets its indelible seal in the glistening steel, causing damage and a constant eyesore and increased worry to every company commander. To keep your rifles spotless they will require daily inspection under the old way of treating them. Air and moisture are rust breeders, are everywhere and at all times.

The Ideal Anti-Rust Ropes

Have solved the problem. These ropes will absolutely prevent rust where they are used and all worry and trouble are eliminated.

FREE SAMPLE—We will send to any Captain or Quartermaster, Four Ideal Anti-Rust Ropes, a solid brass Ramrod, bottle of Gun Oil, Ex. prepaid, upon receipt of 50 cents in stamps, which amount may be deducted from first order
